TOTAL TRANSFORMATION

Once an uninspiring 1960s red-brick detached house with plentiful but pokey rooms and a tired conservatory, this space has been completely remodelled. Walls have been removed where possible, while distinct living, eating and working areas have been retained on the ground floor. Price on application, tc-interior-design.co.uk

BRILLIANTLY SIMPLE

The installation of a simple frameless pane of glass between the hallway and living room has opened up both areas, preventing either from feeling gloomy. And it's all done without the need to knock down any walls! Around £200,000, zulufish.co.uk
